

PRIVATE INVESTIGATIONS FOR THE MISSING

Quarterly Newsletter

Private Investigations for the Missing is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization providing investigative services for loved ones of missing people.

Featured Case: Hoggle Children

On September 7, 2014, Sarah Grace Hoggle, 3, and her brother Jacob Gabriel Hoggle, 2, disappeared from Darnestown, Maryland.

Their father, Troy Turner, woke on the morning of September 8 to discover only his eldest son home. His girlfriend, Catherine Hoggle, and two younger children, were missing. Catherine later returned home without Sarah and Jacob. Catherine was charged with killing her children, but the charges were dropped when she was found incompetent for trial. The children have not been found. Catherine denies harming her children and asserts they are "safe".

The children are biracial and have brown hair and eyes. Please contact PIFTM with any information. For more info: <https://investigationsforthemissing.org/sarah-and-jacob-hoggle.html>

Organization Updates

Private Investigations for the Missing continues to accept intake requests for new cases and follows a screening process to determine eligibility. Cases that are screened in are assigned a case manager and investigator. PIFTM also provides victim and family advocacy services.
